Miami International Airport was recently voted one of the top 15 most noteworthy airports in the 2011 Passenger Terminal World Annual Review.

The airport copped the distinction for the range of retail offerings available in its North Terminal.

The judges felt the terminal's nearly 20 stores stocked a range of brand merchandise that evoked "South Florida chic, " and offered items travelers could find in downtown Miami.

Airport officials said they wanted to ensure travelers connecting through the hub with a lot of downtime had access to a variety of shopping outlets without having to leave the facility.

"The new stores have brought an exciting atmosphere and image to the terminal, and we want to reflect that new spirit," Greg Chin, communications director of the Miami-Dade Aviation Department said, responding to the award.
